

From: Katie Fite <katiemesa@gmail.com>
Subject: Antelope Creek enormous headcuts, dying meadows and headwater spring sage-grouse Focal Habitat
Date: November 9, 2015 9:20:08 AM MST

To:
Bcc:

[Redacted recipient information]

Hi Pat,

The cows couldn't eat this any lower if they tried. In fact, it looks to me like the main cattle food source here is dirt. Seriously

Utterly beat to death yet again by the out of control livestock grazing that takes place across the West Little Owyhee country.

The two remnant headwater willows are further beaten and broken by 2015 grazing.

Also, the headwater hummocks in the area of the meadow that still has a trickle of moisture left are eroding away, and with them goes the meadow soil and recovery potential.

Meadow after meadow is being destroyed across this country, and severe cattleman abuse of public lands continues unchecked.

BLM has shown no ability to be able to effectively control the permitted grazing, and it is really time to just revoke the permits to prevent further irreversible harm.

Katie Fite
WLD

